

I strongly protest any change in the existing FCC rules which will allow even greater concentration of media ownership. This issue has obviously been of greater importance than the republican members of the FCC had expected, and so it is fair to say that their crucial votes on this matter will be noted and remembered at the next election, and the next time FCC members are appointed.